All over the world, educational leaders have been responding to school closures in the wake of the COVID-19 pandemic. Educational leaders have been challenged to develop plans to maintain educational standards, continue to strive for equity, and secure the well-being of educators and learners alike. Now as campuses reopen and students and educators return to schools, how has the pandemic experience influenced or changed the leadership agenda in education around the world?

In our interactive webinars, we will explore leadership practices responding to and reflecting on the pandemic experience, and establish what we know already, what we need to know, and what voices we need to hear in relation to educational leadership in a post-pandemic era.

AGENDA for both interactive webinars:

- Welcome and Introduction by the ELN Coordinators
- Spotlight sharing of practice and research
- Breakout room discussion based on themes emerging
- Action planning for network activity
